DD/S [REDACTED]

1. [REDACTED] telephoned to complain about the temperature in his office (Room 4C-20) and other nearby rooms. I have asked [REDACTED] to look into this personally and to explain to Ray some of the complications in trying to balance the system.

2. [REDACTED] telephoned to insure that I had no objection to the helio-courier landing on the existing airstrip on [REDACTED]. I assured him that I had no objection.

3. I visited [REDACTED] with [REDACTED]. They appeared to be making good progress and are about 4 per cent ahead of schedule. An NPIC representative was there, and it was very helpful to have him explain just what some of the rooms would be used for. (If General Carter or Mr. McCone should visit the building, I recommend that we arrange for an NPIC representative to be there.)

4. I stopped by South Building, which is almost fully occupied now. I noted that the general appearance of this complex of buildings, and particularly the grounds, have deteriorated somewhat since the Director moved to Langley. (We should ask the Office of Logistics to look into this before we get a complaint from the Director.)

5. Mr. Dulles telephoned to request some assistance in connection with moving his office into his home, and I have asked Jim Garrison to take care of this.

6. [REDACTED] was in to talk to me about his space problems. I called Mr. [REDACTED] to see if they concurred in moving Joe into contingency space with the understanding that he might have to be evicted on very short notice. I got the feeling from Von that DD/I might have other requests of similar priority. I told him that I would hold off for a few days. (Von will get together all of the DD/I priorities and will come and talk to us.)

7. [REDACTED] reported most confidentially that [REDACTED] doesn't have much to do where she is with Paul Borel and is becoming most restless. He also reported that [REDACTED] was making noises about leaving the ADP Staff to go to the West Coast. While she is a very brilliant girl, Joe was inclined to believe that her personal life may leave something to be desired and that she should not be discouraged about seeking outside employment.
